

Transmedia Fellowship

Job Title

Web + UX Designer

Reports To

Program Managers

Associate Dean, School of Media Studies

Organization Description

The Transmedia Fellowship has been offering School of Media Studies students at Humber College summer job opportunities since 2014. Managed by two co-producers, the program runs for 14 weeks between mid-May and mid-August. The program brings together students from a wide range of programs to work on a collaborative multi-platform storytelling project. For Humber's Media students looking to fulfil the requirements of their programs, the Fellowship is a competitive prospective job opportunity.

The program aims to provide challenging and reflective roles to ambitious, innovative and creative storytellers.

Who are we looking for?

We're looking for someone who knows how to work in a respectful collaborative environment, who can withstand challenges to their creativity and ways of thinking to produce in a highly demanding and ever-changing environment.

As our lead web and user experience designer, you will be expected to build complex front-end and interactive user experiences for browsers on desktop and mobile devices. You will leverage your ability to quickly and skillfully translate and implement UX designs into well-crafted web interfaces.

You should be able to:

- Effectively support large, complex projects with a collaborative approach
- Design creative concepts and assemble working wireframes
- Be able to adjust to rapidly changing requirements and schedules while taking development from concept to live
- Meet and exceed project deadlines and commitments, always keeping internal stakeholders informed of progress
- Be a team player who demonstrates initiative. Someone who thrives in time-sensitive situations through collaboration
